End of Term 3

I thank all our wonderful students for a terrific and settled term 3. There has been the occasional disruption but on the whole our children have been exceptionally well behaved with a changed timetable due to the production. Why do a production if it disrupts the organisation of the school? Quite simply it is the main avenue teachers have to evaluate the curriculum area of speaking and listening, not to mention the effect rehearsals have on developing student confidence, resilience, and public speaking skills. Our leaders get a chance to display their skills and through the production other students have that opportunity too. It also provides children who have performance flair to develop and display their skills.

School Production

I hope you went to see the wonderful production last night because if you didn’t, you will have missed something special in the life of the Rangebank Community. I will offer more thanks next term but a special thank you to Mrs Christine Carey our director, Mrs Linda Grieg (who wrote the production script) to all our dedicated staff and of course the children who are very much the focus of the production.

Curriculum Day

Thursday 16th October on Dyslexia

Please book this date in your diary as it will occur very quickly next term.

Offers from parents and staff members

Footy Day

On this Friday, the last day of school this term! Students can wear their footy colours. No gold coin donation this year. We have all given enough this term we felt. Good luck to our final four teams and I look forward to next year (with 11 other team supporters. Go Bombers in 2015???)

Enrolments in 2015

Know of a child who is coming to Rangebank in 2015 but has not yet enrolled. Please ask them to do so early as our numbers are filling up fast!

Our Website

Did you know that our website is working again? School Council member, Lawrence Hamilton, has been working on our site and has added many photos from our various activities. Please look. The address is www.rangebankps.vic.edu.au. A special thank you to Lawrence for his time and energy with the website and constant updates it requires.

Hats in Term 4

A reminder that we all wear our Sunsmart approved hats in term 4. I know it messes up our hair a bit but the benefits of wearing a hat are great, particularly as we get older.

Colin Avery, A Principal who is going to enjoy a break along with over 370 other children and adults!
Michael Grose—Parenting Advice

What do a baby, a three-year-old and a fifteen-year-old have in common?

Each is an age of bonding, which is a vital developmental task of childhood.

A baby bonds with her mother (and father)

Forming bonds with one person, usually a mother, is one of the tasks if infancy. Bonding is a by-product of care-giving for most mothers. The intensity of nurturing and caring for a baby brings a special closeness that is hard to replicate.

A parent’s responsiveness to a child’s signals impacts on her development. A strong bond with a parent fosters a baby’s sense of security and becomes the model for future relationships. A father’s bond with a child is also important at this age, but often happens according to a different timetable than a mother’s. Bonding occurs through one-to-one interactions and requires an environment that is supportive and encouraging for parents.

A three-year-old bonds with his family

Around the age of three children start to form relationships with their siblings, and broader family in their own right. That’s not to say, that previously they didn’t have relationships with their grandparents, aunts, uncles or brothers and sisters. But at this age children start to form stronger attachments to other family members, and begin to find their own place within their family structure.

It’s important to include children in family activities so they can feel a part of the family, and are able to form connections with various members. These relationships are the templates for your child’s future connections to other groups.

A fifteen-year-old bonds with her community

Fifteen-year-olds are ready to bond with the adult world around them. It’s no coincidence that many parents face enormous challenges containing this group, as they are getting ready to spread their wings. Without adults to bond with, young people will form strong bonds with each other.

So spend time with your fifteen-year-old, and look for opportunities for your young person to spend time with other adults, whether it’s through a part-time job, sport or other leisure activities. Instigate rituals, such as giving a fifteen year old a house key, that recognise their expanding maturity. Young people at this age tend to be less self-absorbed than in previous years and are ready to connect to their community.

Forming connections with others makes us human, and is the source of sustained happiness over time. Your child has an in-built timetable that helps him form the necessary connections to others as he is ready.

Understanding the developmental tasks of each stage helps you make sense of, at times, nonsensical behaviour, as well as take the actions necessary to help your child meet his or her developmental needs.

To learn more about your child’s developmental stage and it’s special requirements visit my online parenting manual that is also known as Parenting Ideas Club. You’ll get a Parenting Guide to your child’s development stage when you join.

Stockdale & Leggo

Schools are often looking for organisations who are able to assist us. Stockdale and Leggo Real Estate have very generously offered to assist us in marketing our school in the Cranbourne area. In return, we are very happy to encourage our community to use Stockdale and Leggo Cranbourne as a worthy company to contact if you are wishing to buy, sell or lease your home. Please speak to our fabulous office people who will forward your name onto Stockdale and Leggo. This also applies to family, friends or acquaintances.

The school then profits from a recommendation fee and of course the communication to new families “that Rangebank Primary is a great school” is passed on by Stockdale and Leggo.
